Two Versions, One Answer

The anchor

The line the interviewer will remember.

맨 위 한 줄 — 첫 문장과 끝 문장이예요. 이걸 기억하면 나머지는 따라와요.

STANDARD

Longer sentences, more natural.

문장이 좀 길지만 자연스러워요. 연습해서 이걸 쓸 수 있으면 제일 좋아요.

EASY

Short and simple — same story, safer to say.

짧고 단순해요. 긴장되는 날에도 입에서 나와요. 내용은 같아요.

Mix them

You can mix — nobody speaks in one style only.

한 답변 안에서 섞어 써도 괜찮아요. 쉬운 문장 사이에 긴 문장 하나가 들어가도 자연스러워요.

“Tell me about yourself.”

자기소개 — 고객의 기준을 파악하고 끝까지 관리하는 담당자

⚓ I listen first, then I suggest.

STANDARD

Every client is different. Two weddings can look the same, but the couples care about different things.

So I don't start with our packages. I ask about the date, the number of guests, and the budget. I find out what matters most to them. Then I suggest what fits.

After the contract, I keep managing everything. I check their requests, I share the details with the other teams, and I make sure what we promised really happens on the day.

My clients know they can ask me anything. My team knows I finish what I start.

EASY

Every client is different. Two weddings can look the same. But the couples want different things.

So I ask questions first. The date. The number of guests. The budget. I find what is most important to them. Then I suggest.

After the contract, I manage everything. I check their requests. I share the details with other teams. I make sure everything happens on the day.

My clients trust me. My team trusts me too.

“What are your strengths and weaknesses?”

장단점 — 변화 속에서도 업무의 연속성을 유지하는 적응력

⚓ When the team changes, the work still has to go on.

STANDARD

My strength is that I adapt quickly. At Stanford Hotel, our banquet team changed several times — maternity leave, parental leave.

But our clients and their events were still there. So I shared everything with the new members: each client, each event, where we were in the preparation. We divided the work, and nothing was dropped.

My weakness: I used to wait until I understood everything before I moved. But when I took on corporate and broadcasting events, I couldn't wait anymore.

Now I find what I need first, I ask the right people, and I move.

EASY

My strength is adapting. At Stanford Hotel, our team changed many times. Maternity leave, parental leave.

But the clients were still there. The events were still coming. So I shared everything with the new members. Each client. Each event. What was finished, what was not.

My weakness: before, I wanted to understand everything first. Then I moved. It was slow.

Now I find the important things first. I ask people. And I move.

“Why do you want to work here?”

지원동기 및 입사 후 포부 — 실무 경험을 바탕으로 확장하는 연회예약 전문성

⚓ I've done the whole process. Now I want a bigger room.

STANDARD

I've handled weddings, family events, corporate events, and broadcasting events. New inquiries, consultation, contracts, preparation, and follow-up — the whole process.

Now I want to work with bigger and more varied events, and go one step further in this field.

[Your hotel's weddings and banquets are known for _____.] That's exactly the direction I want to grow in.

After I join, I'll learn your standards and systems quickly. Then I'll take on more events, and become someone clients trust and my team can count on.

EASY

I have done many kinds of events. Weddings. Family events. Corporate events. Broadcasting events.

And I did every step. First contact, consultation, contract, preparation, and after the event.

Now I want bigger events. I want to grow more in this field.

[Your hotel is known for _____.] That is the direction I want.

After I join, I will learn your systems fast. Then I will do my work well. I want clients to trust me. I want my team to trust me too.

“What can you do for us?”

직무역량 — 상담부터 행사 준비까지 연결하는 연회예약 실무 역량

⚓ From the first phone call to the last thank-you — I've done all of it.

STANDARD

When an inquiry comes in, I check the date, the type of event, the number of guests, and the budget. Then I suggest the right space and send a quotation.

When they visit, I show them the venue and find out what really matters to them. That's how I bring it to a contract.

After the contract, I manage the schedule and their requests with a checklist. I write the BEO and share it with the menu, flower, and setup teams. If anything changes, I check it again with the client and the teams.

My conversion rate was about 40% for weddings and 80% for family events.

EASY

When an inquiry comes in, I check four things. The date. The type of event. The number of guests. The budget. Then I suggest a space and a price.

When they visit, I show them the venue. I find what is important to them. Then we make the contract.

After that, I manage everything with a checklist. I write the BEO. I share it with the menu team, the flower team, and the setup team.

If something changes, I tell everyone.

My contract rate was about 40% for weddings. About 80% for family events.

“Tell me about a time you gave great service.”

고객서비스 경험 — 고객이 중요하게 생각한 작은 부분까지 기억한 서비스

⚓ She mentioned the scent once. I remembered.

STANDARD

I had a wedding client who cared about two things: the scent of the hall, and the flower colors.

Later, our hotel was changing diffuser companies. From my previous job, I knew one that clients liked, so I suggested it. For the flowers, there were some limits, but I worked with the flower team and we got close to what she wanted.

When she came back for the tasting, she said the hall smelled better. After the wedding, she sent me a long message. She said it was like a movie.

New clients started saying the same thing about the hall.

EASY

I had a wedding client. She cared about two things. The scent of the hall. And the flower colors.

Later, our hotel changed the diffuser company. I knew a good one from my old job. So I suggested it.

The flowers were more difficult. But I talked with the flower team. We did what we could.

She came back for the tasting. She said the hall smelled better.

After the wedding, she sent me a long message. She said it was like a movie.

“Tell me about working with your team.”

협업/조직적응 경험 — 인력 변화 속에서도 이어간 업무의 연속성

⚓ People changed. The events didn't.

STANDARD

At Stanford Hotel, our banquet reservation team changed several times — maternity leave, parental leave.

But the contracted clients and the booked events were still coming. So I helped the new members understand the work: how the office runs, where each client was, what was ready and what wasn't.

At the same time, I kept my own clients and took extra work when it was needed.

That's when I learned something. When people change, doing your own job well is not enough. Sharing the right information is what keeps the whole team going.

EASY

At Stanford Hotel, our team changed many times. Maternity leave. Parental leave.

But the clients were still there. The events were still coming.

So I helped the new members. I showed them how the office works. I told them about each client. What was ready. What was not.

And I kept my own work too. When we needed help, I took more.

I learned one thing. Doing my own job is not enough. Sharing information keeps the team going.

“Tell me about a difficult situation.”

문제해결/컴플레인 대응 — 호텔의 기준과 장기적인 고객관계를 함께 고려한 조율

⚓ The hotel has rules. But clients have situations.

STANDARD

Last year, a company booked their New Year party with us. Three days before the event, they had to cancel. It was the national mourning period.

We had already prepared the food. By our policy, there was a cancellation fee. But it was not really their fault.

So I wrote down their situation and reported it to my manager. We discussed what we could adjust. Then I explained our decision to the client, and I told them about the benefits they could use next time.

The next year, the same person called me. She thanked me for handling it well — and she booked the New Year party again.

I learned this: don't just say the rule, and don't just say yes. Find the point where both sides can stand.

EASY

Last year, a company booked a New Year party. Three days before, they cancelled. It was the national mourning period.

We already prepared the food. So there was a cancellation fee. But it was not their fault.

I reported the situation to my manager. We discussed it together. Then I explained our decision to the client. I also told them about benefits for next time.

The next year, the same person called me. She said thank you. And she booked again.

I learned one thing. Don't only follow the rule. Don't only say yes. Find the middle.

“Where do you see yourself in five years?”

5년 뒤 본인의 모습 — 신뢰를 바탕으로 성장하는 웨딩·연회 전문가

⚓ The person clients ask for, and juniors come to.

STANDARD

In five years, I want to be a wedding and banquet specialist — someone who reads what a client really needs and suggests the right thing, every time.

I want to bring results too: happy clients, and real revenue for the hotel.

And I want to share what I've learned. When I started, I learned a lot from the people around me. I'd like to be that person for someone else.

EASY

In five years, I want to be a wedding and banquet specialist.

I want to understand what clients really need. And suggest the right thing.

I want good results for the clients. And good results for the hotel.

I also want to help new people. When I started, people helped me. Now I want to do the same.
