Who ICON Is, and Where You Sit

You already move freight. Now let's see whose freight — and why it's different.

WARM-UP · YOU ALREADY KNOW THIS

Back at FedEx

At FedEx, what happened when a client's shipment got stuck?

Who did you have to talk to — inside and outside?

What was the worst thing that could go wrong?

Talk it out. Nothing new to learn here — this part you've lived.

What a CRO Is

A pharmaceutical company owns a drug, but does not run the trial itself.

It outsources that work to a CRO — a contract research organisation.

ICON is the largest one: over 40,000 people across 90+ countries.

The sponsor hires ICON. ICON runs the study operations.

The hospitals that treat the patients are called sites.

What Global Logistics Does

Global Logistics moves everything a trial needs.

It has three parts: logistics coordination, import and export, depot and distribution.

The boxes hold medicines, lab kits, devices, biological samples, printed materials.

The import and export team tracks rule changes, talks to customs brokers daily, and files licence applications.

ICON's local office can act as the Importer of Record.

SAY IT BACK

Explain what a CRO is to someone who's never heard of it.

Who pays ICON, and who receives the shipment?

What does your team do inside Global Logistics?

Stuck? Only the term strips come back — not the sentences.

THE SHIFT

What Changes for You

	FedEx	ICON
Your side	the carrier	the shipper — sometimes the Importer of Record
Your client	the person shipping	the sponsor
The receiver	any address	a hospital site
In the box	anything	an unapproved drug — someone's dose
If it's late	a claim	a patient can't be dosed

Say each row as a full sentence — out loud.
