

JUNE · THREE CONVERSATIONS V

Stumbling Into Things

On chance, luck, and the stories we tell afterward.

TALK 1

What You Stumbled Into

What good things in your life did you stumble into — not plan?

Chance hides in ordinary places — an elevator, a laundry room, a class you almost skipped.

DIG DEEPER

- Do you remember the exact moment — where you were standing?
- Did it feel important at the time, or only later?
- Who drifted into your orbit completely by accident?
- Which of your intimate friendships started at random?

TOOLS

I stumbled into ~ · by pure chance · I happened to ~ · ~ wasn't part of the plan · one thing led to another · enroll in ~ on a whim · looking back, ~ · at the time, ~ · if I hadn't ~, I'd never have ~ · ~ came out of nowhere

TALK 2

Waiting vs. Chasing

Can you invite luck — or only wait for it?

DIG DEEPER

- Are you the type to await things, or to go get them?
- Is a blind date too artificial to count as a real beginning?
- When you want something to happen, what do you actually do differently?
- Has chasing something ever chased it away?

TOOLS

put myself in the way of ~ · make room for ~ · you can't force ~ · ~ found me · go looking for ~ · leave ~ to chance · the harder I chase ~, the ~ · show up anyway · let ~ come to me · half hoping ~

When Chance Becomes Fate

Why does randomness look like destiny — once it's behind us?

DIG DEEPER

- In the midst of it, did it feel like a story — or just noise?
- When things line up too perfectly, do you get suspicious?
- Can even a tragic turn become part of a story you're grateful for?
- Do we find the meaning — or make it up afterward?

TOOLS

in hindsight, ~ · connect the dots · ~ fell into place · make sense of ~ · read too much into ~ · turn ~ into a story · it only makes sense backwards
· at random · I tell myself ~ · the story I ended up with
