

JENNY · CLASS 2

You Ask, Then You Argue

First you're the interviewer. Then you make your case — out loud.

Interview Brian

Your toolbox from Class 1 — use at least four:

What drew you to ~?

Can you walk me through ~?

What does ~ mean to you?

Was there a moment when ~?

What would you say to someone who ~?

Today's guest: Brian, an English coach. Find the question nobody else would ask.

The Skeleton

In my view, ~ 제 생각엔 ~

"In my view, Seongsu fits best."

The main reason is ~ 가장 큰 이유는 ~

"The main reason is the mix of old factories and new galleries."

For example, ~ 예를 들면 ~

"For example, book cafes there already draw young readers."

Some people say ~, but ~ ~라고들 하지만, ~

"Some people say Gwanghwamun is the obvious choice, but it feels too official."

That's why ~ 그래서 ~

"That's why I'd pick Seongsu."

Today's Question

If Seoul hosted a global book festival, which district would fit best — and why?

- 1. Think — 30 seconds. Korean is fine in your head.
- 2. Outline out loud — one line per skeleton pattern.
- 3. Full answer — two to three minutes, no stopping.

What You Did Today

You asked — and steered a whole interview in English.

You argued — a full case, out loud, with a shape an essay can borrow.

Next — a second kind of question: what you think, both sides, and what's changing.
