June — Can We Say What We Feel?

Sharing Pain · The Expert's Dilemma · Words for What You Taste 🍷

Two questions about pain — and one glass of wine.

Palliser Estate Chardonnay 2023

Martinborough, Wairarapa · New Zealand

“You can point to your pain — but can I ever really know it?”

통증은 가리킬 수 있지만 — 내가 당신의 통증을 정말 알 수 있을까요?

IF THE TALK SLOWS DOWN — DIG DEEPER

- The 1-to-10 scale you use every day — is my seven your seven? What is that number actually measuring?
- Sharp, dull, burning, stabbing — every pain word is a metaphor. Can pain be described without one?
- “I know how you feel” — is that sentence ever true? How far can empathy actually reach?
- Babies, animals, patients who can't speak — how do we know their pain at all?

TOOLS — 막힐 때 잡는 표현

words fall short (말로는 부족하다) I can only imagine (짐작만 할 뿐이다) at best (잘해야, 기껏해야) strictly speaking (엄밀히 말하면)
put ~ into words (~을 말로 옮기다)

“It hurts — but I’m playing next week.” What do you say?

“아픈데, 다음 주 경기 뛴 거예요.” — 전문가인 당신은 뭐라고 하나요?

IF THE TALK SLOWS DOWN — DIG DEEPER

- Play it out, face to face: Brian is the athlete. Check the ankle for real — “Does it hurt when I press here?”
- How far does an expert's right to say no go? Where does advice end and control begin?
- The data says rest; the athlete says “I’m fine.” Whose word wins — and why?
- Have you lived a moment like this — in the clinic or in your research? What did you do?

TOOLS — 막힐 때 잡는 표현

from a clinical standpoint (임상적 관점에서) weigh ~ against ~ (~와 ~을 저울질하다) I can't in good conscience ~ (양심상 ~할 수는 없다) the worst that could happen (일어날 수 있는 최악) it's ultimately your call (결국 당신의 결정입니다)

“Now — tell me what you taste.”

① First, a sip with no words. What did you notice? Say anything — there's no wrong answer.

② NOW THE TOOLS

The Nose 향

citrus 시트러스, 감귤류

white peach 백도

a hint of oak 은은한 오크 향

toasty 구운 듯한

The Palate 입 안에서

crisp 산뜻하고 또렷한

round 둥글고 부드러운

creamy 크림미한

balanced 균형 잡힌

The Finish 삼킨 뒤 여운

clean 깔끔한

long 길게 남는

it lingers 여운이 남다

it fades fast 금방 사라지다

It reminds me of ~ (~가 떠오른다) There's a hint of ~ (~가 살짝 있다) It tastes like ~ (~같은 맛이다) The finish is ~ (여운은 ~하다)

③ Now take another sip — same wine, new words. Say it again.

“Why does wine language sound like poetry?”

와인을 말하는 언어는 왜 시처럼 들릴까요?

IF THE TALK SLOWS DOWN — DIG DEEPER

- Citrus, oak, peach — none of these are the wine itself. Why does taste have no words of its own?
- We drank the same glass and felt different things. Is one of us wrong? (Remember my seven and your seven.)
- Does knowing the words change what you taste — or only what you can say about it?
- Some things we enjoy without knowing; some need knowing to enjoy. Which is wine? Which is pain?

TOOLS — 막힐 때 잡는 표현

put my finger on it (딱 집어 말하다) I'd describe it as ~ (~라고 표현하겠다) it's hard to pin down (딱 잡아 말하기 어렵다) the closest word is ~ (가장 가까운 말은 ~) that's exactly it (바로 그거예요)
